

WINNING ESSAYS IN THIS AREA IN STATE CONTEST

1st and 2nd Prizes Awarded To Bristol Residents By Exchange Clubs

BOTH ON SAME TOPIC

Martin J. Healey Wins First Honors; Thomas Collier, Jr., Second Prize

Two essays written by two Bristol students have been awarded recognition in a contest conducted by the Exchange Clubs of Pennsylvania, according to an announcement made at a meeting of the Bristol Exchange Club, held Thursday evening. The authors of the articles were Martin J. Healey and Thomas Collier, Jr. Both wrote upon the subject, "Early Settlers and Their Contributions to the Development of Our Nation." The first prize was awarded to Healey while Collier captured second honors in this community.

The essays are as follows: "Early Settlers and Their Contributions to the Development of Our Nation"

By Martin J. Healey
The first settlers in the New World were, almost without exception, founded by groups of dissatisfied or disillusioned people seeking a refuge where they might lead their own lives without interference by others.

It was this urge that led the Pilgrims, a group of Separatists from the Church of England, to leave their homes and embark on the Mayflower. September 16, 1620, they sighted the bleak shores of Massachusetts, and here they established the settlement which was to be known as Plymouth Colony.

In a like manner, in September, 1628, another group led by John Endicott, settled at Salem, Massachusetts. These people, like the Pilgrims, were also opposed to the Church of England, and were called Puritans. Their settlement at Salem became the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The Pilgrims were never guilty of religious persecution, but the Puritans were as rigid and intolerant as any sect in England. The settlement of Rhode Island by Roger Williams was direct result of this intolerance, for having been banished from the Colony, he left Massachusetts with his followers and settled at Providence.

The same is true of Connecticut, which grew from the settlement founded at Hartford by Thomas Hooker. So, like Williams, could not accept the intolerance of the Massachusetts Colony.

Then in 1681, William Penn—himself a Quaker—founded the settlement of Pennsylvania, which, although intended as a haven for the persecuted members of that sect, welcomed all religions.

While all this was taking place, a settlement was established in Maryland in 1633, under the leadership of Lord Baltimore, for the protection of English Catholics. Each of these groups contributed to the development in a different manner the Pilgrims, with the first democratic form of government; Maryland, with the first law of religious toleration; Virginia, with the first representative assembly; Connecticut, with a constitution drawn up by the people for their own government; Massachusetts, with the free public school system; and the Quakers, with their founding of the city of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia.

Through the establishment of universities of learning at an early date, the colonies contributed much toward the educational development of our nation. For instance, Harvard was founded in 1636; William and Mary in 1693; Yale in 1701; the College of New Jersey (now Princeton) in 1746 and the University of Pennsylvania in 1749. The industrial, commercial, political, social and religious contributions to the present development by the colonies are too numerous and varied to detail; but their greatest contribution is our inherited love for freedom and our firm opposition to despotism and intolerance.

If we, the people of these United States, strive to fulfill the ideals and standards set for us by these early settlers, then this "government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Early Settlers and Their Contributions to the Development of Our Nation"

By Thomas Collier, Jr.

Practically every state on the Atlantic Seaboard traces its origin to some successful settlement by peoples from Europe. They principally came to avoid religious persecution in their native lands. Their anxiety to be free from worship according to their own beliefs strengthened them and lent determination to stand the hardships of establishing themselves in this new faraway country. The rulers of the old countries often lent aid in order that their territorial domain might be increased and also that their revenues might be added to. Stock Companies were organized in England with the expectation of profit from planting colonies in the New World.

CHARGE 4 WITH STEALING MOTHERS' DAY FLOWERS

Quartette of Philadelphians Will Be Given Hearings At Doylestown Today

TO BE HELD FOR COURT
DOYLESTOWN, May 7—Stealing 2,000 white carnations ready to be cut for shipment to the Philadelphia market for Mothers' Day, is the despicable crime charged against four Philadelphians who will be given a hearing here this morning and held for the next term of Bucks county criminal court.

Those charged with the crime are Charles Geist, 27, 2089 East Pacific street; Thomas Simons, 27, 856 East Thayer street; Lewis Barch, 36, 1437 Rosalie street; and Peter Fix, 27, 2001 East Somerset street.

Privates Felix R. Gowan and Harry Christ, of the Doylestown sub-station of Pennsylvania Motor Police, are prosecuting the quartet who are alleged to have entered the greenhouses of Peter Hellberg, Chalfont, early yesterday morning and cut 2,000 carnations and ruined thousands of plants in bud.

Chief of Police James Ottinger, of Upper Dublin Township, Montgomery county, stopped a car containing the four men and 2,000 carnations about 3:30 yesterday morning on the Limekiln Pike at Dreshertown. Believing them to be suspicious characters, Ottinger held them until he contacted various police departments, asking them to check up on greenhouses, many of which are located in this section.

Hellberg, a prominent grower, was contacted at 5:30 yesterday morning and discovered the flowers had been stolen from his houses. The four men were then turned over to the Pennsylvania Motor Police. The carnations were worth about 10 cents apiece wholesale at this time.

New Water Tank Being Given First Bath Today

The Borough's new 500,000 gallon water storage tank today is being given its first internal bath. The huge tank yesterday and during last night was filled with water for the first time. Today the water is to be drained out and then the tank will be refilled. This process will continue until the interior is free of dirt. Then the tank will be placed in service.

The water to fill the tank yesterday and during the night was taken from the surplus supply. The pumps at the pumping station were kept in operation and as the consumption decreased the excess water went into the tank, until it was filled.

Mrs. George B. Wislar Dies At Her Midway Home

Mrs. George B. Wislar, Midway, who died yesterday, was born in Frankford, Philadelphia, the daughter of John and Mary Benton Garsed, on July 22, 1859. The Garsed moved to Bucks County in 1884, and in 1890 the daughter, Mary Benton Garsed, was married to George B. Wislar, of Bristol Township. She was a member of Grace Episcopal Church, Hummelville, and at one time taught a Sunday School class there. Her death was caused by influenza, complicated by pneumonia.

Mrs. Wislar is survived by her sister, Miss Linda Garsed, and four children, George Wislar, Trenton, N. J.; Joyce and Rowland Wislar, who reside at the Midway residence; Mrs. H. B. Lawrence, Caldwell, N. J.; and three grandchildren.

Private funeral service will be held at the Wislar home, Monday afternoon, by the Rev. Albert F. Fischer, Jr., vicar of Grace Church, Hummelville, with interment in Beechwood Cemetery.

RELIGION TO BE TAKEN TO MAN ON THE STREET

Gospel To Be Preached From Sound Trucks in Philadelphia Each Day

PRESBYTERIAN BACKERS

(Special to Courier)
PHILADELPHIA, May 7—Religion will be taken literally to the man on the street by the annual meeting here May 24 to June 1 of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. The gospel will be preached every day on several of Philadelphia's busiest street corners from sound trucks operated by the evangelism department of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions.

The evangelists, each of whom will speak daily, are the Rev. Dr. Wesley Megaw and the Rev. Alexander Warren, both of New York. A cornetist will accompany each vehicle.

Choral music by thousands of voices will feature the meetings of the General Assembly, each of which is open to the public, it is announced at the Assembly's headquarters. At the ten or twelve mass meetings and other gatherings celebrating the 150th anniversary of the organization of the first Presbyterian General Assembly in 1788, three large choruses will sing. One numbers 2,000 voices, and another 1,500. In addition spirituals will be sung by Negro musical organizations.

At one mass meeting on Thursday night, May 26, 130 persons, most of them men, will participate in a play, "The Fathers That Begat Us." This is described as "a dramatic reproduction of the first General Assembly," which was held at Philadelphia in 1789.

Radio broadcasts are announced as daily events at the Philadelphia meetings. Every evening a news commentator will broadcast an interpretation of the day's actions of the General Assembly, and on Thursday, May 26, at about 11 a. m., the annual sermon of the retiring Moderator will go on the air. The retiring Moderator is the Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, New Jersey. Additional broadcasts will be made every day.

Speakers at the popular and other special meetings of the Assembly number more than 40 men and women. Among them are Arthur Holly Compton, University of Chicago Nobel prize winner; John H. Finley, editor of The New York Times; Luther A. Weigle, of Yale; President John A. Mackay of Princeton Theological Seminary; Daniel Lamont, of Edinburgh, Scotland; J. Harry Cotton, Columbus, Ohio; President Mildred Helen McAfee, of Wellesley College; Norma P. Dunning, M. D., Kolhapur, India; State Senator Lester H. Clew, of New Jersey; Sam Higginbottom, Allahabad, India; President Benjamin Rice Lacy, Jr., Union Theological Seminary, Richmond; William H. Boddy, Minneapolis; George A. Buttrick, New York; William Lloyd Imes, New York; Jesse M. Bader, New York, and many others.

A novelty at Presbyterian General Assembly meetings will be a corps of specially trained hostesses and hosts. These will greet the thousands of visitors, give them information and provide any other help that may be needed.

The hosts will be on duty day and evening in Philadelphia's large Convention Hall, where all meetings are to be held. Here there will be Assembly restaurants and a huge Assembly reception room and lounge to be known as "the hall of fellowship," equipped with easy chairs, reading tables, writing desks, stationery and other facilities for visitors.

The delegated "commissioners" who compose the General Assembly, with their wives and families will be given the choice of several free tours of Philadelphia and vicinity by buses chartered by the local hospitality committees. One tour will go to Valley Forge.

Gift Shower Occurs Here For Miss Grace Shorter

A miscellaneous shower was given Thursday evening, in honor of Miss Grace Shorter, Woodbury, N. J., by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hibbs, at their home, 240 Madison street, and members of the choir of the Harriman M. E. Church.

After the guests had assembled in the Hibbs home, the guest of honor arrived. Upon entering the living room she was greeted by a life-sized model, dressed as a bride, carrying a bouquet of Easter lilies. In the center of each lily was a small card tied with white ribbon telling of a secluded spot where a gift was hidden.

During the evening the party was serenaded, by several members of the church, depicting a bridal procession. Games and singing were enjoyed by the guests.

Refreshments were served to: the Rev. John MacElroy, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rogers, the Misses Doris Wilkinson, Irene Van Soest, Minnie Van Soest, Mildred Gentleman, Ruth Gentleman, Catherine Barr, Dorothy Anderson; Mrs. Paul Marsh, Mrs. William Groff, Samuel Trautman, Albert Lynch, Joseph Winslow.

John F. Simons Dies In 80th Year of His Age

An aged resident of Bath Addition died yesterday, John F. Simons succumbing to an illness of seven months' duration. He was in his 80th year.

A resident of this section most of his lifetime, Mr. Simons is survived by his wife, Emily Mary Simons.

The Rev. John McElroy, pastor of Harriman Methodist Church, will be the officiating clergyman, when the funeral service is held Monday at two o'clock at the Simons home, Orchard avenue, Bath Addition. Burial in Bristol Cemetery will be in charge of the H. S. Rue Estate, funeral directors. Friends may call Sunday evening.

Shot by Brother While Playing "Cops and Robbers"

OTTSTVILLE, May 7—Nine-year-old Carl Tscheschlog, of Ottsville R. D., is in the Quakertown Community Hospital recovering from gunshot wounds in the chest, abdomen, right arm and left hand, inflicted by his brother, John, 11, who accidentally shot him while the two were playing "cops and robbers" in the yard at their farm home yesterday.

Private Harry Christ, of the Doylestown sub-station of Pennsylvania Motor Police, investigated. John was not held because of the fact the shooting was accidental.

The two boys were in the back yard when John ran into the house and grabbed a gun, which happened to be loaded. Carl had already been playing with an empty shot-gun.

WOMEN AFFILIATED WITH GRANGE GIVE PROGRAM

Mrs. M. E. Newbold, Chairman of Home Economics Committee in Charge

SEVERAL TAKE PART

LANGHORNE, May 7—Women members of Middletown Grange gave the program numbers at the meeting held in the Friends school house, Wednesday evening, with Mrs. M. E. Newbold, chairman of home economics committee, opening the program. Mrs. Newbold told of the activities of her committee, explaining that the home economics committee of the State Grange has outlined the activities for the subordinate grange committees in the state.

Members of this committee, it was said by Mrs. Newbold, have been called upon to serve as a hospitality committee, to provide transportation for elderly and infirm members of the grange, to have supervision over the appearance of the grange halls, to be of assistance at all times of need and to be watchful over needy children.

After Mrs. Newbold's comments, various members of the committee made contributions to the program. Mrs. Samuel Everett read "My Tools," by Robert White, and Mrs. Aaron Tomlinson read a Mother's Day story, "Artificial and Old." Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, another member of the committee, read Edgar A. Guest's "Observations," and another short poem, "Steadfast He Stands."

Mrs. Harriett Mitchell, the other member of the committee, assumed charge of the plant exchange which was a feature of the meeting. Some very rare and unusual plants were exchanged at this time.

Following the program there was a display of needlework. Included in the exhibit were aprons, embroidered and crocheted articles, hand made handkerchiefs and novelties, all of which were sold and the proceeds were placed in charge of the women's work committee. This committee served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The next meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, Woodbourne, May 18th, at which time some of the questions to be considered will be the pasture improvement, the farm garden and the eradication of some of the noxious weeds.

To Hold Music Festival At High School, May 20th

A music festival is planned by students of Bristol high school for Friday, May 20th. This will be conducted in the high school auditorium, with the first portion of the program including selections by the grade school orchestra, Jefferson avenue boys' glee club and the new band.

The second half will feature the girls' glee club, the orchestra, and a mixed chorus of about forty voices. Student soloists will be heard on the program, and in the way of professional entertainment, a girls' trio of concert and radio fame from Philadelphia has already been engaged.

FLORAL ARRANGEMENT IS SUBJECT FOR CLUB

Mrs. Henry C. Parry, Langhorne, Gives Numerous Suggestions

TEA MEETING ENJOYED

The Garden Section of the Travel Club, which presented the program at yesterday afternoon's club meeting, had as the speaker Mrs. Henry C. Parry, Langhorne, who during the term just concluded served as president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Garden Clubs.

For the enjoyment and instruction of the women who assembled for this tea-meeting, Mrs. Parry featured a number of flower arrangements, and as she carried out this particular piece of work she gave valuable hints, and answered questions of local gardeners.

Mrs. Parry informed the local club women what their Garden Section can mean to the local community, and congratulated them on improvement of the rear lawn of the club property by fulfilling their plans for a "Memory Garden." Suggestions given by the speaker for service to the borough included sponsorship of garden contests, course in home decoration or flower arrangement for girls of the community, selection of a main topic for study, along floral lines, for a period of one or two years, etc. The concerted effort being made to rid the state of billboards that hinder views of the countryside, or that are in hazardous spots, was mentioned.

Four main things to keep in mind when arranging bouquets of flowers mentioned by Mrs. Parry were: Distinction, relation of flowers and container, color harmony, perfection of arrangement.

Suggestions were given for height of bouquets as compared to size of container; keeping of tallest tip over the center of the vase; and Mrs. Parry reminded that there should not be combined too many "weak" nor too many "strong" flowers.

In the demonstration containers of various sizes, shapes, colors and materials were used, selection being made according to the flowers to be arranged.

Mrs. Parry was presented to the members by Mrs. Walter Pitonka, chairman of the Garden Section, who announced the program for the afternoon.

Musical selections in the form of piano solo were given in excellent style by Mrs. William Livermore, Doylestown. Mrs. Livermore was highly congratulated for her talent, and the numbers given, which included: "Etude de Concert" (McDowell); a Spanish dance "Malaquena" (Ernesto Lecuona); and "Romance" (Sibelius).

Mrs. Earl Tomb presided during the business meeting, with Mrs. Harry Neher having charge of the records of the session. Mrs. Neher, who is also chairman of legislation for the club, spoke of the privilege that devolves upon women citizens in elections, and urged all to take advantage of the privilege of the ballot, in the primary election especially.

Announcement was made of a meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom to be held at the home of Mrs. William H. Arensmeyer, on Tuesday at 2:45 p. m.

Mrs. Pitonka revealed plans for the improvement of the rear of the club property, mentioning arrangements to have a "Memory Garden" planted. She told that work has commenced and that several have donated shrubs, etc. Mrs. Pitonka told of an all-day County Conservation and Garden meeting to be held on Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at Washington Crossing Park. A short

SUSPEND SENTENCE ON CROYDONITE FOR TAKING RELIEF CHECK

Rob't Walp Tells Court He'd Never Go On Relief Again If He Could Get A Job

"I'D STARVE FIRST"

Says He Took Check To Buy Food For His Wife And Baby

DOYLESTOWN, May 7—"If I ever get a job I'll never again go on relief, believe me; I'd starve first." This was told to Judge Hiram H. Keller in the Bucks County Court on Thursday by Robert Walp, 26, who was arrested and charged with stealing a relief check. Walp lives with his wife and baby along the State Road at Croydon.

Walp was injured some months ago while working at his trade as an electric crane operator. Later when he recovered, there was no work.

Thursday Walp pleaded guilty in the Bucks County court to a charge of stealing a $6.90 relief check which he forged in order to get cash to buy food and medicine for his wife and baby.

Walp told a straight-forward story to Judge Hiram H. Keller as to why he stole the check. Because of certain compensation which he received as a result of his injury, Walp was not entitled to relief even though he spent the compensation to pay back bills. But, as soon as he was arrested and placed in jail, his wife received relief checks.

"I have tried everywhere to get work, but there simply is none in my trade right now," Walp declared.

"One thing is certain," Walp declared, "If I ever get a job I'll never again go on relief, believe me; I'd starve first."

Judge Keller told Walp that there were two sides to the question, that he might have been keeping some one just as desperate as he from getting a relief check.

"Under the circumstances, however, the Court will suspend sentence in this case on condition that you pay back the $6.90 as soon as you get a job," Judge Keller ordered. The county was directed to pay the costs.

DOYLESTOWN, May 7—Two Brooklyn youths who pleaded guilty Thursday in the Bucks county court to robbery, larceny and receiving stolen goods, were sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory until such a time that the authorities of that place think they are safe to be at large.

They are Frank Hughes, 16, and Lorenzo F. Laricks, 16, who admitted stealing an automobile in North Plainfield, N. J., on the night of April 23 and driving toward Philadelphia. On the way down the Old York Road at Hartsville at 12:30 midnight, they stopped a car driven by Mrs. Lora C. Wall, 30, of Abington, robbed her of $29 in cash and then drove her car toward Philadelphia and wrecked it when it crashed into a pole.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1938

MOTHER'S DAY

There is a universality of appeal in the observance of Mother's Day which no other time of remembrance possesses. An ancient proverb has it that "God could not be everywhere and therefore he made mothers." Certain it is that the mothers of the race, more clearly than any other earthly figures, reveal the infinity of love and tenderness which, in some mystic fashion, encompasses mankind.

It is little enough tribute that this one day of all the year is set aside to honor mothers. All the love and devotion that can be shown to mothers today is infinitesimal compared with the affection, the loyalty, the sacrifice and the suffering that have gone to make up their lives. Even so, it remains for children to make this a day of days. For those fortunate ones whose mothers are living it should be a joyous time of gifts, of flowers and of feasting, of loving tributes and of good cheer. For those whose mothers, wearied with the burden of the years, have gone out into the encompassing infinity, there is memory, and the quiet solace of prayer.

But this one day of loving kindness for the living is not enough. Mothers merit not merely one day of demonstrated devotion in a year; every day should be Mother's Day, replete with hugs and kisses, little tendernesses, thoughtful deeds and cheerful words. No child in a lifetime of loving attention can repay a millionth part of the eternal owed to the mother who gave him to the world.

Deep in the heart of every man there is cradled one perfection, one ideal creation: Mother. Giver of life, comforter in time of trouble, preserver of the home and of the family, Mother is the personification of unselfish love, now and forever. Sunday is her day. And every day throughout the years also should be hers.

POWER FROM THE SUN

There is no source of power except the sun, though its heat becomes useful energy to man by roundabout ways. For a long time, scientists and inventors have tried to find a short-cut method of using sun power and converting it into horsepower. Sun engines of various kinds have been in use for years, but their efficiency has been disappointing and their construction expensive.

A more scientific attempt to solve the problem was recently reported to the International Power Conference at Washington. The latest thing in sun engines is simple, but its design depends on many modern discoveries in physics and other sciences.

At intervals, the sun is faced with the danger of depletion as fuel supply, but the threat has always been averted by discovery of new sources of heat and power. There is a measurable limit to the present known reserves of coal and oil and water power, but the two most apparent and unlimited sources of energy have been hardly utilized. One is the wind, the other the sunshine.

As other fuels become scarce and expensive, industry may finally be compelled to use the cheapest and most universal power of all, derived from a blazing furnace millions of miles away.

Middle-class men are the ones who provide luxuries for their families and carry enough insurance to finish paying for them.

Our own state of Pennsylvania is celebrating this year the 300th Anniversary of its first settlement by the Swedes. Delaware is also marking its third Centenary of settlement by people from that same nation. We, however, consider our state's settlement by William Penn and his Quaker followers as the real start of the growth of Pennsylvania. They chose the location and laid out Philadelphia proper just as it stands today. Virginia had its beginning in the settlement by the London Company at Jamestown. The state of Massachusetts sprang from the original colony of Pilgrims that landed at Plymouth in 1620. Connecticut was founded by land hungry immigrants from Massachusetts. Roger Williams dissented from the religious views of the Pilgrim fathers and was compelled to flee with his followers to what is now Rhode Island. As Subscribers to only the established Church of England were tolerated in that country, a group of Catholics under Lord Baltimore emigrated and founded the state of Maryland where complete freedom of religious worship was granted. In 1623 The Dutch West India Company planted a settlement on the lower end of Manhattan Island. They established fur trading posts and started some industries. This was the foundation of the great City of New York and of the State of that name.

In each of these colonies the great difficulties were the clearing of the lands, building of habitable homes, and raising food for subsistence in their first years of existence. Disease was a great enemy. They also had to constantly be on the look-out for Indians and had to carry their guns into the field to guard against attack. With their success more boatloads of immigrants arrived which contributed to their strength and started the gradual expansion which did not stop till this country was settled from one ocean to the other.

From these people, who had braved these dangers because of their religious ideals and love of liberty, sprang a race who cherished these virtues, so much in fact that when England attempted taxation without representation the growing strength of the colonies with help from France was sufficient to throw off the yoke of the mother country and to establish our country of today.

Each colony as it grew had a local form of government or Provincial Assemblies, and from these the knowledge and experience from which was drawn our present form of democratic government was accumulated.

The enterprise these forefathers showed in coming to these new lands has been felt down through the generations and is evident in the material wealth of these United States. Their love for freedom and representative government was responsible for this democracy and for the democratic rule in other countries of the world. Their coming here for religious freedom led to its establishment and it has been zealously guarded down through the past three centuries. They are the foundations which they provided and on which the principal greatness of our nation rests.

"CONTRABAND" by Dennis Wheatley

SYNOPSIS

When Gregory Sallust first saw the girl, in the Casino at Deauville, it was near midnight on the last day of the young Englishman's leisurely tour through Normandy. Sallust, a former Intelligence officer, is now confidential investigator for a great British commercial corporation. The girl, tall and beautiful, came into the gaming room accompanied by a strange little man, not a dwarf yet curiously ill-proportioned, whom Gregory recognized as a sinister figure in international affairs. When, at midnight, the girl left the Casino alone, Sallust followed her. She meets a man in aviator's togs and the two are trailed by Gregory to a room above a cheap cafe, where the man is attacked by three hoodlums. Gregory helps him escape. Gregory then takes the girl, Sabine, to his hotel to save her from police questioning. There he asks her the meaning of the coded telegram he found in a black note-case on the floor of the cafe room after the fight. While they are talking her odd little companion, calls Sabine on the telephone, telling her the coast is clear for her to return to him. Gregory tries to get Sabine to admit that the thugs who attacked the man (a Scotland Yard officer) were in her friend's employ. She warns him that it is sometimes dangerous to know too much.

CHAPTER IV

"A threat, eh? Come, that's ungenerous, since you'd be in the Deauville police station at this moment if I hadn't got you out of that cafe. More, it's rank ingratitude when I propose to keep you here all night to save you from arrest. Remember, the man who your friend's thugs tried to do in was an officer from Scotland Yard. When our special branch men operate on the continent they always keep in touch with the local police, so if he has escaped he will have made his report by now—given your description—and the authorities will be wanting you pretty badly."

For a moment she was silent, then with a little sigh she sat down on the arm of a low chair. "I am so tired," she murmured, passing her hand across her eyes. "Perhaps you are right, Monsieur, but it is ungrateful that you should take advantage of my situation."

He smiled, one of those rare warm smiles which could at times make his grim face so attractive, and laid a hand on her shoulder.

"Don't worry, please," he said softly. "I hope we are going to see quite a lot of each other in the future, so the last thing I want is to make you think me a bore. I only want to help you. I'm sure it's best for you to stay here the night, though. You can have my bed and I'll shake down with some cushions and the old-down in the bathroom. We'll talk things over in the morning."

She nodded slowly, not doubting for an instant that he meant exactly what he said.

Gregory made a practice of never being called and usually slept late in the morning. But at half past eight the bathroom door opened and Sabine put her dark head round the corner.

As his eyes opened he stared at her in bewilderment, then the events of the few hours before flooded back to him and he sat up.

"I am so sorry if I disturb you," she said, "but I have been awake a long time and I am hungry; also, I would like a bath."

"Right! Give me ten minutes, please, and I'll see what we can do about some breakfast. Feeling better this morning?"

"A lot, thank you." She smiled and shut the door.

He shaved his lean face with quick sure strokes, brushed his tangled hair, slipped on his dressing gown, and then joined her in the bathroom.

Her evening dress and stockings were still lying over a chair and she sat perched on the edge of the bed, muffled in her big fur coat.

"I've turned on the bath," he told her, "so in you go, and don't come out before I call you. In the meantime I'll order breakfast. What would you like, just coffee and rolls, or something more sustaining?"

"May I have some melon, also an omelette—I think."

"You little glutton," he laughed, "of course you may, but we'll have to eat it off one set of plates, or else they'll tumble to it that I've got a visitor. Run along now and when you hear the waiter come in, mind you stop splashing."

As she left him, carrying away her clothes, he gave the order by Sabine joined him a few moments later, clad now in her evening dress and looking beautiful but slightly incongruous in the bright morning sunshine which was now streaming through the window.

Breakfast proved a gay and pleasant meal. They had to drink from the single cup and shared the melon and omelette with the happy laughter that springs from quick mutual attraction. All the distrust she had shown of him the previous night had disappeared.

When the meal was over he waved a hand towards the trunk, saying nothing of the note which had come with it. "You had better change now, I think, into day clothes, while I have a bath and get dressed my-telephone, and a quarter of an hour later the floor waiter appeared with the dishes and coffee upon a tray. He was accompanied by a porter carrying a cabin trunk, which he set down carefully as he said, "This has just arrived, Monsieur. I was ordered to bring it to you at once."

When the men had gone Gregory examined the trunk. It was addressed to him and he found it unlocked. On opening it, he saw a note inside. It read:

Dear Mr. Sallust:
I trust that you have taken care of my little friend, Sabine. Some people in my position might find grounds for serious annoyance in her desertion of me, but at my age I can afford to be tolerant towards the escapades of young people. I only hope she was not disappointed in you.

Now that this little frolic is over, return to my care at the earliest possible moment. To facilitate that end I send under your name a complete outfit of her day clothes. Should she fail to rejoin me by noon I shall consider you lacking in appreciation of the courtesy I have extended to you and proceed to teach you a sharp lesson in good manners. I do not sign this as Sabine will know from whom it comes.

Gregory grinned. He did not need to ask Sabine from whom the letter had come, and knowing something of the sender he felt that the veiled threat was by no means an empty one. Yet he had no intention of self. But what shall we do afterward? How would you like to spend the day?

She became grave at once. "I must get back and rejoin my friend. Otherwise he will be angry and when he is angry it is not good."

"Listen," Gregory leaned forward eagerly and took her hands. "If you wish to do so, you are perfectly free to walk out of this room now. From the beginning I've never had the least intention of turning you over to the police, I'm sure you know that, but if you go now I may never see you again. All I'm asking is for another hour or two with you. This is the last day of my holiday. I'm returning to England this evening by the five o'clock boat. Won't you be very sweet and kind, risk a spot of trouble with the old man, and spare me a few hours somewhere and lunch together in the sunshine. I'll have you back in Deauville and safe at home by four o'clock. I promise."

"You have been kind—and generous." She hesitated a second. "But this may be most dangerous for you."

"Danger has never stopped me doing anything I wanted to yet, nor you my dear. We're two of a kind and thrive on it—be honest now—aren't we?"

"C'est vrai," she said softly. "All right then, I will do as you wish, but the consequences—they must be upon your own head."

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

"Love, Honor and Behave," an engaging comedy about young married life, and co-starring two sensational young actors, Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, has been scheduled as the next feature attraction at the Grand Theatre, where it will open today.

You'll remember Morris as the "Kid" of that recent success, "Kid Galahad," in which he sky-rocketed to stardom. Six-foot-four of blonde and grinning manhood, he's the answer to any maiden's prayer and a swell actor besides. As for Priscilla Lane, she's the small, smart, of crooning dynamite who vamped her way to fame in "Varsity Show." The team is said to be one of the most romantic and delightful pairs the screen has ever had.

One of the few times a personality has been called upon to portray the role of himself in motion picture, occurs in the 20th Century-Fox release, "Rawhide," the film which is at the Grand Theatre Sunday.

Lou Gehrig, star first baseman of the New York Yankees, was signed to play the role of . . . Lou Gehrig, star first baseman of the New York Yankees. Co-starring with Smith Ballew, singing cowboy of the screen, Gehrig is seen at the close of the 1937 baseball season, sworn to retire from baseball for a life of peace and comfort in the town of Rawhide, Arizona.

An opportunity for Bristol screen fans to see one of the biggest musical productions of the current season is assured with the announcement that "Swing It Professor," newest of the Pinky Tomlin starring pictures, will open at the Grand Theatre Sunday.

BRISTOL

With an ideal cast enacting one of the year's greatest mystery stories against the exciting background of Hollywood night life, "Hollywood Stadium Mystery," now showing at the Bristol Theatre, is affording local movie fans something delightfully different in the way of screen entertainment.

Nell Hamilton, as a debonair district attorney, plays opposite lovely Evelyn Venable, a successful playwright. Together, they attempt to solve a baffling murder mystery surrounding the death of a champion boxer in the Hollywood Stadium.

Moviegoers with a yen for world travel will get their big chance to see Europe when the new Claudette Colbert-Gary Cooper comedy, "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," comes tomorrow to the Bristol Theatre. Not only is the story laid against the background of Europe's most glamorous resorts, but to make it authentic, Director-Producer Ernst Lubitsch sent a crew of photographers across the Atlantic on a fourteen-week trip, from which they returned with more than thirty thousand feet of film.

The early part of this story of an American multi-married multi-millionaire, who is tamed by a determined French wife, takes place on the Riviera, the first part of call for Lubitsch's photographers. They then retraced the Cooper-Colbert honeymoon trip across the continent, which took in such world-famous pleasure spots as Venice, the Austrian Tyrol, Prague, Vienna, Switzerland and finally Paris. During their trip they covered 15,000 miles.

"Bluebird's Eighth Wife" continues the trend, so popular during the past year, toward broad comedy played against a sophisticated European background. Among the best remembered are "Champagne Waltz" and "I Met Him in Paris."

Lubitsch, who is known throughout Hollywood for his insistence on detail in his pictures, explains why he went to all the trouble and expense of sending his photographic crew abroad.

McCAHAN WINS THIRD STRAIGHT FOR LANGHORNE

"Reds" Display Their Best
Offensive Power In The Contest

GET TEN HITS

McCahan Laces Out Three Hits, Including A Double

NEWTOWN, May 7—The Langhorne Redskins really went on the warpath with their hickory sticks as they broke out with ten hits to count the terrific sum of 5 runs against 3 for the Newtown Indians and thereby defeat the home team for their third consecutive victory in Lower Bucks circuit "comp".

The "Reds" displayed the most potent offensive power they have shown all season thus far in the tilt to score more runs in this game alone than four previous contests combined in circuit play. Bill McCahan, who hurried the visitors to conquest, personally accounted for the triumph, not alone through his great pitching ability, but through his willow wielding power as well. He laced out three hits including a double, drove in a pair of counters and contributed another brace of runs to the total to account for four of the five runs they scored. On the hill he whiffed 11 opposing hitters, passed only two, gave up but three hits, and halted a budding Indian rally in the sixth with a sensational diving catch of a short pop bunt to turn it into a double play. However, he had his run of scoreless innings stopped after it reached 23 straight in league games, when Newtown denied the plate for two runs right off the bat in the first frame. Incidentally, it was Newtown who last scored on him when they counted in the third inning in their tilt at Langhorne in the opener.

SOUTHAMPTON WINS

YARDLEY, May 7—A lone tally in the seventh inning deprived Bill Cornell, Southampton star right hand pitcher, of a shut-out as he hurled his team to an easy 10-1 win over Yardley High in an upper division game in the Bucco league.

SHUTS OUT FALLSINGTON

BUCKINGHAM, May 7—Bob Horton pitched six-hit ball and shut out Fallsington High for Buckingham here yesterday afternoon in an upper division tilt in the Bucco league. The final score was 6-0.

TABLES TURNED

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS)—Bailliff Claude Earl Smith turned the tables on his mother, Mrs. Myrtle P. Smith, when she was called on a Superior Court jury. He gave her orders and even locked her up for the night while the jurors deliberated.

Turf's Greatest Classic

By BURNLEY

"THE BEST
3-YEAR-OLDS
OF THE LAND
GO AFTER THE KENTUCKY
OF ALL
CLASSICS!"

It's Derby day again, and the 64th Kentucky Derby goes down in history as one of the most interesting of all the Blue Grass classics.

There are no War Admirals, Pompoons or Reaping Rewards to make the current Derby a top-heavy and one-sided race, though Stagehand was a definite winter book favorite because of his triumphs in the Santa Anita Derby and Handicap. The tradition that a California-trained horse can't win at Churchill Downs caused some of the bettors to be wary of Sande's touted colt.

The future book on the Kentucky Derby is one of the most precarious of gambling propositions, since all bets are made on a "pay or play" basis. This means that the bet stands, whether your horse goes to the post or not.

Since the original winter book lists all 103 entries, and less than one-fifth of these go to the post, it is easy to see that the bookie has all the best of it, even when he offers tempting odds. On such a list, they even quote a price for fourth, besides the usual win, place and show. That's how anxious the bookies are to inveigle the suckers into donating some of their hard-earned shekels.

JEANETTE LEINHAUSER PITCHES GOOD GAME

Jeanette Leinhauser, of Edgely, pitched a no-hit, no-run game for four innings in a softball game against Croydon Thursday, but under a cool 14-0 lead she went out in the fifth in favor of Shores. However, the latter was hit rather freely during her three innings on the hill and it was from her delivery that Croydon made all their hits and runs. Edgely won the tilt by the one-sided score of 18-7.

Egely made only nine hits (half as many as runs), but Croydon kicked in with the astounding total of 17 errors to boot the game away. Downsap with three hits, and Wright with seven Croydon hits were evenly divided among seven girls. Johnson and Joan Leinhauser had triples while Wright had a double.

This was the second victory in two games for Coach Edna Pennypacker's girls over the aggregation coached by Ethel Kives.

BRISTOL EAGLES TO PLAY STRONG ARGO BALL NINE

Tomorrow the Bristol Eagles will play the uniformed Argo A. C. nine, which has a fine reputation in the sand lots of Philadelphia. The game will be played on the Edgely ball diamond at 2 p. m. There will be strong competition between these two teams, as this is the opening of a series to be completed in the near future.

The Bristol Eagles have a three-game winning streak at present by defeating the Rangers, 15-2; Midway, 13-6, and Amoco, 8-6. The Eagles have played eight games so far this season, winning four, tying one, and losing three. This team has lost to the Philadelphia Ravens earlier in the season by the score of 6-3.

A crowd is expected to turn out to see this tilt, which promises to be an exciting game. The hurlers for the Eagles are: Jim Fanini, Walter Laszkowski, John Sak, and Peter Kondyra. The star of the team, Andrew Kondyra, will do the receiving. The remainder of the team is as follows: Martin "Flash" Healy and Pete Capriotti, first base; Fred "Flip" Fanini, second base; Bud Krames, shortstop; Teddy Sak and Bud Crohe, third base; and the outer garden will be attended to by that famous "Slingshot Sam" Kershaw, Walter "Lucky" Lackewitz, and Jim Fanini.

G. Libiri will manage the Argo team, while the Eagles will be taken care of by Walter "Lucky" Lackewitz and his assistant Jim Fanini.

LANDRETH SEEDS LOSE 1ST GAME TO KENSINGTON

Playing their first game of the season the Landreth Seeds were defeated by Kensington the champions of the Philadelphia League at D and Tioga streets last night 9-7.

Rockhill's single and Griggs' three-base hit gave the Seeds a run in the first inning, Kensington tying the score in their half on Kennedy's pass and Ryan's two-base hit. The home team took the lead in the fourth, counting three runs on a two base hit by Conway and three successive singles. Landreth's rallied in the fifth with four runs on passes to Rockhill and Dougherty and triples by Liberator and Breslin and Lodge's single, putting the Seeds in the lead, only to lose it again in Kensington's half of the inning.

Heisley pitched six innings for the Seeds allowing seven runs and nine hits. Ashby pitched the seventh inning. A base on balls, a fielder's choice and a two-base hit gave the home team their final runs.

Rockhill for the Landreth team reached first five times out of five trips to the plate, singling the first inning, walking three times and hit by pitched ball once and scored three runs.

MOTHER

It's Mother's Memory we share,
With petals, perfumes everywhere,
Lest we forget the "Good Night Kiss,"
Some little trifle, that or this.

Gold cheers cold hearts, cools heated hands
But Mother's Heart before us stands,
My Mother with her touch of love,
Like guardian Angel from above!

As Time clicks off the passing years,
Or Memory's sweetness comes through tears,
In little corner of my heart,
My Mother's memory plays its part.

When Star of Hope, in storms, distress,
Or Dreams are ashes, more or less,
We looking thru the blue above,
Greet cooling mists of Mother's love.

I would drink deep in sacred lake,
Of Mothers tears, regrets to slake,
To ease her sorrow or her sigh,
To dry the tear-drop in her eye.

Turn back the pages of Old Time,
Blot out our boyhood's soot or slime,
That caused forgiving tears to flow,
So silently down cheek of snow.

You whisper still, "Goodbye, my boy,"
That brought me sorrow, gave you joy,
Your words come back, "We'll meet again,"
In wondrous beauty now and then.

Come, Mother's Hand, still be my guide,
Until my boat finds other Side,
And I will be a better man,
For Mother's Love says, "Boy, You Can."

—JOHN P. TAYLOR.

Suspend Sentence On Croydon Man For Taking Relief Check

The defendants denied that they tried to ravish Mrs. Woll but Mrs. Woll testified that they did annoy her as they speeded down the highway. After the wreck the two defendants fled across a field and left the woman stranded. They were arrested a short time later by Private Felix R. Gowan, of the Pennsylvania Motor Police.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller informed the boys that he could have sent them to the penitentiary for 10 years.

A detainer has been lodged by the New Jersey authorities against the defendants, charging the theft of an automobile in that State.

Leonard Horan, 31, Shenandoah coal miner, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on April 14 on the Bethlehem pike. He was driving a motorcycle at 70 miles an hour when Private Shovelin, of the Motor Police stopped him. Horan, who had been in the County Prison 21 days, was given a suspended sentence but placed on probation and directed to pay the costs within two months.

Judge Keller commented on the arrest of Caspar Malhus, 46, of Brooklyn, who pleaded guilty to driving while drunk along the Lincoln Highway near Fallsington on April 17th. Private Mitchell, of the Oxford Valley sub-station of Motor Police, stated that he chased Malhus three miles at 70 miles an hour before he could stop him.

The Court remarked that he could see no reason why the Motor Police would have to follow a man three miles, if he was driving in a dangerous manner. "It looks as though the cause is being aided and abetted by the officers when they have to chase a man three miles," Judge Keller remarked. Malhus was fined $200 and costs.
